

Copyright, Harrie & Ewing
Miss Katherine Leckie edits the daily news sheet issued by the Food Administration Bureau at Washington.

Copyright, American Press Association
WOMEN WORKERS REJOICE IN EMANCIPATION FROM HAMPERING SKIRTS
The popularity of skirtless togs is growing in the United States, where many of the war fashions of Europe have been adopted. The women in the picture are employed in a New York box factory.

Mrs. Angier B. Duke, daughter of Anthony J.rexel Biddis, of Philadelphia, in her costume as "vandiere" at Tuesday's Red Cross fete at Newport, R. I.

(c) International Film Service.
Miss Pauline Dixon, of Philadelphia, as a Hawaiian girl at the Newport Red Cross fete. Her engagement to John Wamaker, Jr., recently was announced.

GIANT WIRELESS TOWERS AT FORT MYER
Young men from Pennsylvania and New Jersey who aspire to become army officers are in training at this great rendezvous on the outskirts of the national capital.

Photo by Kadel & Herbert
SUPPLIES FOR A BATTLESHIP'S CUPBOARD
The most powerful naval force ever assembled under the Stars and Stripes is now fully supplied and ready for battle.

Copyright, International Film Service
CAPTURE OF GERMAN BOYS PROVES KAISER'S NEED OF MEN
These young prisoners, taken in the Oise district by the French, belong to the class of 1918. A French officer is questioning them.

YOUTHFUL WORKERS FOR THE RED CROSS
Little Eleanor Corry, left, and K'itie Rigg, who are doing their bit for relief work at Riverton.