

PREVENTION DISSOLUTION

Attorney General Agrees to Consider the Question Seriously.

Contest Over Dissolution Has Become Absolutely Independent of Manufacturers' Gloom.

NEW YORK, Special.—The fight over the dissolution of the Trust has reached an acute stage. Attorney General Wickersham said in court yesterday that he would insist on full compliance with all demands, while Lewis Cass Ledyard, counsel for the trust, asserted that his propositions were ridiculous, and would be fought in the courts. In addition to this, the Attorney General was consulted with reference to criminal prosecution of the trust magnates, and with reference to the removal of the United States District Attorney of North Carolina to Washington for a conference upon this phase of the matter.

Urges Criminal Prosecution.

E. J. Justice, who presented argument for the Farmers' Union of North Carolina against the approval of the plan, declared that only remedy now remaining for the protection of independents and growers is to invoke the criminal clause of the Sherman law.

That should have been done long ago," he said. "They have been convicted by the judicial action of both houses of the Sherman law. Then why should the Government delay or hesitate about instituting criminal proceedings against them? I shall take this question up with Attorney General Wickersham as soon as I can meet him here and try to insist on it in a criminal prosecution."

Threatened With Receivership.

"The Supreme Court," he said, "said Mr. Wickersham, in his argument, that the whole tobacco combination is tainted with illegality, but, realizing the effect of such a ruling on the world if the enterprise should be closed at once, it allowed the defendants to submit a plan of disintegration. Their plan, although it was in the meaning of the Supreme Court, in fact, it disobeys the court's orders."

He added that he could not fail to realize the "tremendous catastrophe" to the country if the plan is carried out. He would not be doing his duty, he said, if he did not take that view of the matter, although he was against the plan in its present form. "This court," he claimed the Attorney General, addressing himself to the judges, "is not to be used as a tool unless a plan is agreed upon, either appoint a receiver for this company or paralyze its business by injunction. As head of the Department of Justice, he has done all that could be done to assist the court and the tobacco company in restricting the combination to the limits of the law. I thought well of the plan as a whole until I received objections from men and interests who have protested to the judges. Then I looked into it more closely and found that the amendments I have submitted."

The Attorney-General was particularly severe on the United Cigar Manufacturers, "where there is no concern," he said, referring to that company, that is giving quite a lot of trouble, and which, he said, "has been brought into this case, not because of the complaints and the fact that the defendants own it. That is the most dangerous company in this city, and it reaches out and destroys competition with an iron hand. I have seen the defendants here would cut away from that concern, would get rid of their stock, and have recently nothing to do with it, it would make the plan submitted much more acceptable. This court can see that this is done."

Independents Are Gloom.

The declaration of Mr. Wickersham that the plan as amended by him is not even satisfactory to the independents in this country, he said, "is a statement that even then the entire independent tobacco industry of the country, including the Southern States, would be worse off than ever. They will, he said, "have to resist the tyranny of a combination which would control the big trusts, instead of one as at present. It is ridiculous to talk about the trust proposals being a benefit to one another. They will be owned and controlled by the same combination, and, of course, no relief can be hoped for."

Mr. John W. Yerkes, who is also covered for the number of independents, took the same gloomy view. "As soon as the tobacco trusts' plan is carried out," he said, "I realized that our case would be an empty one. We did not take the matter up with the judges, just as the lawyers for the tobacco company have urged us to do. They want to arrive at a correct solution of the problem absolutely untroubled in American jurisprudence."

Calls Proposition Ridiculous.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, of counsel for the trust, said:

BROKER ROBBED OF HIS FINE CLOTHES BY PHONE

NEW YORK, Special.—James W. Henning, broker, who failed on the Stock Exchange in October, 1906, after making and losing several millions by spectacular plunging, and who won a new start the next month, was robbed of a week's salary, $1,000, when it was the Oakland Handicap, has been relieved of his war-brother by a trick as old as grafting.

A few days ago Edward Dougherty, superintendent of the building at the Fifth Avenue, in which Mr. Henning lives, received a telephone message to pack Mr. Henning's clothes, as he was going away for a week's stay. Mr. Henning, it seems, is in the habit of telephoning from his office, 111 Broadway, to have his evening clothes sent around to the Racquet Club, where he often dines after taking his afternoon exercise.

As some clerk always telephones for the broker, Dougherty had no reason to be suspicious, and promptly set about packing the clothes. Half an hour later a fifteen-year-old boy in knickerbockers, blue suit and cap, and with a bright, open face, called for the clothes. He had his hands in his pockets and got away. He has not been seen since, and it is said Mr. Henning's loss is between $700 and $800.

BANDITS MAKE LARGE HAUL

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Special.—Two masked men boarded the Western Express train at the Rock Island Railroad at Bridge Junction, Ark., opposite Memphis, at 2 o'clock this morning, bound the express messenger and new up the safe, taking $50,000 from the United States Express Company, which was being shipped to small banks in Arkansas, between Memphis and Little Rock.

They then entered the mail car and compelled the three mail clerks to line up at the point of a pistol, while one of them rifled the mail sacks.

One man remained in the car, while the second went to the engine cab and ordered the engineer and fireman to back the train onto the Mississippi River on a side track, where they left it and disappeared, walking east on the river bank.

ROOSEVELT FLAYS TAFI'S TREATIES

NEW YORK, Special.—President Taft's proposed arbitration treaties are again used as a target by ex-President Roosevelt in an editorial appearing in today's issue of "Outlook."

It would not be merely foolish, but wicked, for us, as a nation, to agree to arbitrate any dispute that affects our vital interests or our independence or our honor," he says. "Because such an agreement would amount on our part to a covenant to abandon our duty to an agreement—to surrender the rights of the American people about unknown matters to be decided in the future. Such an agreement would be wicked if kept, and yet to break it—as it undoubtedly would be broken if the occasion arose—would be equally shameful and keeping it. A self-executing arbitration treaty of such a kind cannot be devised, simply because it does not involve the vital interests of the nation in the future. Such a treaty would be executed by the nation in time of stress."
