A Mod'rn Range

"Built to Suit the Housewife"

Do you realize how much out-of-date low oven Ranges really are? Low oven ranges were first introduced over forty years ago...

The Leonard Hi-Oven Range

(Burns Coal or Wood)

is a real up-to-date range. It is built especially for particular housewives. Think of the convenience of the elevated glass door oven...

A Wonderful Fuel Saver

The draft construction of the LEONARD HI-OVEN RANGE is the most wonderful fuel saving device ever put on a stove. It is scientifically right.

Come in and let us show you and explain the many special features of this range, and remember that it costs you no more than other high grade ranges of the old style, inconvenient construction.

department at the state fair again this year, are realized and the reports splendid progress and encouragement up to date, the display in this department will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in the state since the Lewis & Clark exposition of 1905.

"The great need at the state fair in the art department is to educate the people towards an understanding of what art means," declares Mrs. Weister, "then they would be interested enough. Oregon is said to be the most backward state in the union in art, and a state or nation without art cannot be even moral, let alone the idea of happiness."

Last year Mrs. Weister adopted the scheme of establishing a daily series of practical lectures upon art, for the benefit of all visitors to the fair and particularly the beginners in art studies, and used the different contributions to the exhibit, both professional and amateur, to illustrate her talks in the light of expert criticisms. These lectures made a big hit with students and lovers of art and this year Mrs. Weister plans to take up the work where she left off last year and proposes to use colored lantern slides, showing the best works of art in the world in connection with simple talks.

"I have the lantern slides," she writes, "and can talk without a moment's notice."

"The Art Museum of Portland will exhibit," Mrs. Weister says, "and I am very glad as this will show the art of designing, which lies at the base of all our industries. I will have a great many speakers on art, giving its practical side during the fair, and have planned for an interesting program for each day."

Mrs. Weister is going to try hard to secure a "loan exhibit" few works of great merit as examples—and when she sets her heart upon anything worth while she usually gets it. She is also making an appeal to the woman's organizations of the state to arouse state-wide interest in art, and particularly the art exhibit at the state fair, and at the annual meeting of the Federation of Woman's clubs, in October, of which she is art chairman, she will organize a state fair art department, so that every club in the state will be represented. The chief ambition of Mrs. Weister, in this connection, is to secure for the state fair a separate building for the art department and she will not cease her efforts until her hopes are realized.

The Booth string orchestra went to Monmouth this morning to furnish the music for the large all fresco reception given at the state normal school this afternoon.

The many friends of Miss Margaret Rodgers and Miss Cary Howard, who have gone to Eugene to attend the university, will be interested to learn that the girls have just been ploried to the Kappa Alpha Theta society.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Membership week for the Salem association, September 18-22, 1916. Hope for it, plan for it, talk for it.

The membership committee cordially invite each member and their friends to a tea on Friday, 22, from 2 until 6 o'clock.

There are over 500 members in the Salem organization. How many times do you as a member go to see if there is something you could do or give to help? This association would be a credit to any city, who has made it so!

A few women have worked hard and given much of their valuable time in making a comfortable home for women without a home.

You all know that a home means work, personal supervision, good management, that it is in fact, the real "business end" of a very important copartnership.

Prove your loyalty to your association by bringing one new member to the tea and let this be a start in carrying on your share of the work.

The committee would like very much to see the 200 expired memberships paid up by Friday at 6 o'clock. The chairman, Mrs. R. C. Bishop, will be at the association rooms all day Friday to receive membership fees. If you find it impossible to come that day leave your own and your new members dollar with Miss Cleveland at the rooms during the week. A list of the new members will be published in these notes.

Become a member now and be ready to join the splendid classes starting next month. These classes will be a rare opportunity for the Salem young women; watch these notes for the dates.

Mrs. Charles Basey, a member of the Portland Y. W. C. A. board, will give to the Salem members next Friday at the tea some interesting and helpful ideas about association work. Mrs. Basey attended the convention at Seabeek, Wash., last July and all members should hear her.

Don't fail to look for the answers, keep a close watch in the windows. As soon as you find out what it is, you will want to be in it just sure.

MISS MARVIN ELECTED TO HEAD LIBRARIANS

Says Tendency On Coast Is To Adopt County System

Miss Cornelia Marvin, librarian of the state library, is home after an absence of six weeks in the east and attending the Northwest Library Association which met in Everett, Washington. At the recent session of the association held in Everett, Miss Marvin was elected president for the coming year, an honor that very seldom comes to Oregon as the Northwest Library Association includes librarians from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia and Alaska.

While motoring in the New England states, Miss Marvin noted the little independent libraries in even the small towns, a system that is just contrary to that of the Pacific Northwest, where there is a tendency to centralize in county circulating libraries affiliating with the state library.

In referring to the general reading throughout the state, Miss Marvin says that recently the demand from all counties for books of reference for schools and colleges. These reference books may remain in any one school or county three months.

During the summer months, the state in general seems to have become interested in books on music as the demand for information on music has been more active than any former year.

After the call for works on music, the readers in Oregon are posting up on modern European history and works of travel and geography of Europe.

The county library system is growing in Oregon, and Miss Marvin just returned from Clatsop county where she was assisting in preparing this system. Astoria has agreed to turn over its library to the county provided the county system becomes effective.

By the county system, a central library is maintained by taxation at the county seat, making it convenient for quick distribution. Where the county cannot supply the books required, requisition is made on the state library. Miss Marvin believes this system is much more effective than the placing of small libraries in each little town as is the custom in the New England states. Multnomah county has the most successful county library in the state. Other counties with a central library are Umatilla, Wasco, Hood River and Klamath, although Klamath has not as yet completed arrangements.

Anyhow, after travelling in the east and observing eastern methods, Miss Marvin is satisfied that the west is solving the library problem through the county libraries better than the east is in its small independent libraries to be found in every village.

The Flapper Gets a New School Frock

The long, straight lines of this plaited model of navy blue serge make it an ideal costume for growing girls. Quite a military air is given by the tan sash collar and braid strapping the bodice perpendicularly. Mottled tan and blue buttons trim the belt and strapped sleeves.

MOSQUITO FLEET IN NIGHT DRILL WARS ON FAKE "SUB" WITH DUMMY PERIDCOPE

SECTION OF MOSQUITO FLEET AND MOTHER SHIP NEW JERSEY

Motorboats representing submarines and containing dummy periscopes have been attacked at night by the mosquito fleet in and around New York. The breaking in of New York's motorboat fleet as an auxiliary to the navy is far from an easy task, Captain L. H. Kaiser, senior officer present in command of the battleship New Jersey, mother ship for the motorboat fleet, is well satisfied with the work done, however. Under the supervision of Lieut. P. W. Wilcox, United States navy, who has had charge of details of the motorboat drill, their owners have been put through stiff paces. There have been maneuvers in squadron formation, attacks by some motorboats, backed by hydro aeroplanes, spying out mines and destroyers, while other motorboats and destroyers defend certain waters at the entrances to the Ambrose and Swinah channels. Then there have been night drills with screened lights, practice in signalling with the Ardois and other instruments. The drill periods are from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 4 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m. Dummy periscopes on small boats have been used to represent submarines and floating and anchored mines for the motorboats to dodge were placed everywhere. Group A was assigned to the battleship New Jersey, with Lieutenant Keep in charge. The Sunbeam II, with R. B. Roosevelt as group commander, was made its flagship. His fleet consists of F. T. Rothchild's Lillian II, August Belmont, Jr.'s Barracuda and C. B. Parker's Louise. Group B, assigned to the Maine, in charge of Lieutenant Cecil, received the Atlantis as flagship, with L. H. Dyer as commander. His fleet—H. S. Beardley's Mustang, H. E. Boucher's Zita, W. M. Brown's Altruria and R. P. Huntington's Troubadour. Group C, assigned to the Kentucky, in charge of Lieutenant Ellis, has for its flagship the Florence, with Matthew Rock as commander. His fleet—Hendon Chubb's Sallotte, Sigmond Cohen's Rosa, W. K. Donnelly's Dawa, F. F. Farrell, Jr.'s Dawn and W. T. Wheeler's Tee. William Ziegler, Jr.'s Gem and Harold I. Pratt's Dodger II were assigned to do special service with the destroyers, and another special service boat is the Babu II, owned by H. E. Gordon, Jr., the men in charge of the flying boats are E. S. Willard, John Pratt and Lieutenant G. D. Murray. The upper picture shows the battleship New Jersey with the flagship Sunbeam II. In the lower pictures are the motorboat Barracuda and Lieutenant P. W. Wilcox.
