'YOU DARE NOT' SMITH CRIES TO LOAN ENEMIES

Mayor Flings Challenge in Face of Those Who Would Halt Progress

MENTIONS NO NAMES

Insinuates, Though, That Penrose-McNichol Crowd Is Meant—Looks to People

"No set of politicians can drive me into line by threatening the defeat of the transit or general loans. I don't believe any one for political purposes would dare impede the progress of Philadelphia by endangering the loan."

So said Mayor Smith today, when asked if he intended yielding to the demands of the Penrose-McNichol crowd to desert the transit or general loans.

Senator McNichol called on the Mayor today just as he was about to hold a cabinet meeting. Directors of departments waited in an outer office while the Mayor and Senator conferred.

The Senator declined to talk after the conference. Mayor Smith said that he and the Senator had talked politics, but declined to go into details.

In outlining his plans for a vigorous campaign for both loan bills, upon the success of which depends all his ideas for a progressive municipal government, the Mayor said:

"No open throat has been made to me by politicians that they would defeat the general loan or the transit loan, but I have heard such a thing generally talked of."

"Certain persons have told me that such a course would be taken, but I can hardly bring myself to believe that any man or set of men would dare attempt to impede the progress of the city."

WILL SPEAK TO PEOPLE

"There may be some danger in the loan situation and an election day draws near I mean to use every effort to place the true facts before the voters so that they for no reason need be misled."

"I am accepting invitations to night meetings of business men and other bodies with the express purpose of taking advantage of these meetings to discuss both loans."

"I mean to discuss the loan at the meeting of the 'Allied Businessmen' tomorrow night and have given over my desire to remain at home on evenings between now and May 16."

"I have tried so far to pass a few quiet evenings with my family, but this pleasure I mean to forego until the question is settled. My evening engagements have not all been arranged as yet, but I mean to speak at a big public assembly in West Philadelphia on May 9 and at another on May 13."

"My Directors and department heads are also working for the loans and they will take advantage of every opportunity to impress upon the voters the necessity for the passage of both bills."

"I appreciate the aid being given the loans by the newspapers and feel that they can do more than any other force to impress upon the people the need for the passage of the loans."

"As far as the transit loan goes I expect the people will be in favor of the construction of the lines which will be the strongest in favor of the measure. There may be some people who think the city plans to spend too much money and they must be shown that both measures are necessary. The newspapers can do this and can do much to overcome any opposition that may develop for one reason or another."

TRUSTS THE PEOPLE

"No responsible person has threatened to attempt the defeat of either loan bill, and I believe that with the whole question intelligently presented to the voters there can be no doubt of their ability to force me to force my hand by threatening defeat at the polls, and I don't believe that the people will allow any political controversy to impede the progress of the city."

"There are some people who do not say much, but sometimes vote wrong on questions involving public progress. It is these voters that we want to reach and impress with the need for both big loans."

"I for one mean to use every effort and

WILSON MAY NAME JOHN THORNTON

President Will Withdraw Nomination of R. F. Wagner

WASHINGTON, April 26.—President Wilson, it was authoritatively stated today, has decided to withdraw the appointment of Robert F. Wagner to be postmaster of New York. It was learned that the President receives an urgent request from Mr. Wagner that his name be withdrawn. The latter is understood to have said that under no circumstances could he accept the appointment.

No information could be obtained today as to who would be selected for the place. It is generally believed here, however, that the appointment now will go to Joseph Johnson.

THE WEATHER

The lowering clouds over the pouring clouds, as will Shakespeare would say, in spite of the Chicago judge—did not look well this morning. It was a sickly prospect that the sky presented. The clouds were ashy gray, and all that appeared of the jaundiced sun were a few sickly pale rays. The supply of spring tonic apparently was exhausted. But, on the other hand, the sky above Philadelphia was fair to gaze upon, in contrast with the sickly pale rays that hang above the Emerald Isle today. The red clouds of war have drifted, as with the wind, across the sea, and are casting their baleful shadow upon the shamrock. The cold sea is being drenched with blood.

Bearing these facts in mind, say we, it is with a firm conviction that we assert the sky that looked down upon Chestnut street this morning was a very fair sky.

FORECAST

For Philadelphia and vicinity—Generally cloudy tonight and Thursday, with probably light rain; somewhat cooler Thursday; gentle variable winds.

For details see page 17.

EASTER PARADE ECHO

Quarrel Between Prize Judges Causes One to Be Held for Court

An echo of the Easter promenade on Fairmount avenue last Sunday was heard in the Central Police Court this morning, when Oscar Dahms, of 2019 Fairmount avenue, was held in $400 bail for court by Magistrate Beaton, charged with assault and battery on Thomas Callahan, of 2016 Fairmount avenue.

Callahan testified that a member of the committee of the Fairmount Business Men's Association, which had charge of the matter of awarding prizes, handed him a committee badge and asked him to check up the participants in the parade, and while doing so he said Dahms snatched the paper and pencil out of his hand and struck him.

Dahms said he was chairman of the committee and that Callahan was not authorized to act as a member and when he went up to him he snatched the paper and pencil. He denied striking Callahan.

YOUTH HAD TOO MUCH "PEP"

Hazelton Lad Stole, Ran, Fought and Went to Jail in an Hour After Arriving

Thomas Burkhardt, 21 years old of Hazelton, Pa., arrived in Philadelphia this morning and in an hour he had snatched two gold watches from a jewelry store, led a crowd a merry chase through West Philadelphia, fought a policeman, was arrested, arraigned and held in $800 bail for a further hearing.

His meteoric career in this city began in the store of C. E. Sanborn, a jeweler, of 6109 Market street. Burkhardt asked to inspect Sanborn's best watches. When the tray was put before him he snatched two watches and ran. The chase led along Market street to 61st, to Race, where Policeman Sherr, of the 61st and Thompson streets station, was getting off a car. The policeman joined in the pursuit and caught Burkhardt at Arch and Edgewood streets, after a fight in which they both rolled in the street. Magistrate Stevenson was entering the police station when Burkhardt was brought in. The prisoner, the police say, admitted the theft, but explained that he was in need of money for medical treatment for his eyes.

BRITISH WARSHIP BADLY DAMAGED IN NAVAL BATTLE

German Shell Penetrates Boiler Room of Destroyer in Fight

THREE RAIDS ON COAST

LONDON, April 25.—Four persons were killed and twelve wounded by shells fired from German cruisers in the raid on the English east coast early yesterday, it was officially announced this afternoon.

The city of Yarmouth, as well as Lowestoft, was shelled by the German warships.

In Lowestoft, 240 dwellings were damaged, 40 of them suffering severely. The Convalescent Home, the pier and the swimming baths were also badly damaged.

At Yarmouth only two buildings were damaged, one of them seriously.

LONDON, April 26.—Three separate attacks, one by warships and two by aircraft, have been delivered against the British coast by the Germans within the last 24 hours.

In the naval engagement in the North Sea, following the German bombardment of Lowestoft, one of the British destroyers is reported to have been badly damaged, although the damage done to the light cruisers by shells from the German ships is said to have been slight.

A German shell penetrated the boiler room of the destroyer, causing some of the boilers to explode.

The total casualties in the British squadron are placed at from 20 to 30.

The raid over Essex and Kent last night is shown by official information given out by the Admiralty to have been as extensive as that over the East coast. Three Zeppelins took part and dropped many bombs.

Both battles combined all the agencies of modern warfare, raging on sea and land and in the air at the same time. Zeppelins helped the German warships in the attack upon the English coast while airplanes were used to aid the British men-of-war in their bombardment of the German harbor works and gun emplacements at Scarborough and other points on the Belgian coast.

Mr. Asquith indicated that part of Dublin is still held by the insurrectionists, saying: "Liberty Hill and Stephen's Green have been occupied by soldiers. Steps are being taken to arrest all concerned."

TWO AMERICAN SOLDIERS SLAIN IN VILLA CLASH

Sixteen Mexicans Killed in Running Fight With Colonel Dodd

DEMAND TO WITHDRAW

Obregon Expected to Urge U. S. to Quit Mexico—Scott to Be Firm

Two American soldiers were killed, three wounded, while six Villistas were killed and 16 wounded in a clash Saturday led by Colonel Dodd. The running fight occurred at Tomachie, in the Guerrero district.

Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Carranza War Minister, will demand the immediate withdrawal of the American troops now in Mexico to get Pancho Villa, according to Mexican officials at Juarez. Obregon is on his way to El Paso to meet Generals Scott and Funston for a conference on the situation.

Contrary to this report is the Washington belief that Obregon will be willing to make concessions in view of the precarious condition of the present de facto Government and the fact that he himself is a probable successor to Carranza and therefore will not wish to antagonize the United States.

General Scott will tell Obregon that Villa must be caught and his hands dispersed; that if the Mexicans cannot do it, and will not co-operate with the American expedition, then the United States will continue the pursuit. In any event, the troops will be held in Mexico until the job is finished.

COLONEL DODD AGAIN LEADS U. S. ATTACK ON VILLISTAS

COLUMBUS, N. M., April 26.—Two Americans were killed and three wounded in an engagement Saturday afternoon between Colonel Dodd's forces and a force of 200 Villistas under Cervantes Becerra, near Tomachie, according to radio messages received here today.

The Mexicans lost six killed and 16 wounded.

Colonel Dodd, according to information received here, had about 100 men when the engagement began.

The Villistas formed the rear guard of a stronger force that was proceeding southward. Despite the fact that they were outnumbered two to one, Colonel Dodd's troops drove the Villistas into the hills in a running fight that lasted until after dark. The Villistas were last seen retreating toward Guasare, it is said.

The American dead and wounded are being brought northward on a pack train.

OBREGON WILL DEMAND U. S. WITHDRAW FROM MEXICO

EL PASO, April 26.—General Alvaro Obregon, Mexican Minister of War and military dictator of the southern republic, is traveling to the border today, determined to insist upon one principal demand in his conference with Major General Hugh L. Scott and General Funston—that the United States forces now in Mexico be withdrawn.

Mexican authorities in Juarez made it plain that Obregon would permit of no compromise in his negotiations with the representatives of the American Government. They said that the War Minister would point out that there could be no pacification of northern Mexico until the American troops were withdrawn, their continued presence there being a menace to law and order.

The same Mexican officials expressed the belief that Obregon would receive assurances from General Scott that the United States troops would be taken out of Mexican territory without delay. They declined to state their reasons for this belief, but their attitude indicated that some of the finest intricacies of Mexican diplomacy were involved in the conference.

With their statement of the demand on which General Obregon will stand firm, the Mexican officials, apparently inspired by directives from a higher source, perceived the situation.
