Foreign Office.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.-German officialdom today believes Russia sold the fatherland out to England early during the Balkan crisis, in return for the promise of the flotation of a big Russian loan in England.

The German foreign office professes to have proof that Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey, of England, took latter was in London on Balkan business and that Sir Edward prevailed on the financiers to promise a Providence of Basel. loan if Russia would support England in the Balkan muss.

Germany Approached.

There are rumors that Russia ap proached Germany on the subject of London; that German financiers didn't see their way clear to make the loan and that Teutonic influences were thrown over in consequence.

Through her alliance with France, Russia was able to carry the latter country with her, shake alien confidence in the strength of Germany's position and practically isolate Germany and Austria.

according to a decision of the Internal Revenue Commissioner on a question that came up from Collector McCord, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The Prohibitionists of Cleveland told Collector McCord of a retail liquor dealer who had built a hall across the street from his saloon. A society of which he was a member, gave a banquet there one night, and this saloon man furnished the foamy thirst extinguisher.

The Commissioner has ruled that the saloonman in question had a right to gerve the beer at the banquet, but if he had sold it at wholesale prices to the givers of the banquet, he would be liable for the special tax demanded from wholesale dealers.

The North Dakota compares with other battleships of the present period, as the new Cunarders Lusitania and Mauretania compare to the ordinary type of ocean liners with reciprocal engines. Like the Mauretania and the Lusitania and the new scout cruiser Salem, the fastest big naval vessel affoat, the North Dakota is to be equipped with turbine engines, which, despite her great bulk, are expected to drive her through the water at a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 29.—A small trouser button, bearing the trademark of a West Side tailor, shattered the sensational kidnaping tale told by Hazel Maine, the seventeen-year-old girl who disappeared from her home in the Hotel Sharpe. October 19, and was picked up in Chicago three days later, dressed as a boy, and telling the story of being drugged and letained a prisoner there.

The male clothing worn by the girl was taken from a tailor in the basement of the building where she was employed. A detective traced the clothes from wearer to wearer and second-hand store to second-hand store, and finally connected the disappear-dince of the clothes with the alleged kidnaping of the girl.
