Carranzistas Dissolved as Leader of 10,000 Repudiates "First Chief."

ZACATECAS ADVANCE ENGAGES OUTPOSTS

General Oregón in the process of organizing some 10,000 men in the district of Zacatecas, as reported from the borders by dispatches, is42 as follows:

"The Government's plan was to establish outposts in the territory of Obregon, to prevent any further movement of forces in that direction. The Carranzistas, under General Obregon, have taken advantage of this situation to engage in battles with the Constitutionalists.

"The Constitutionalists are well-armed and well-trained troops. They have advanced across the border and are now in close contact with the Carranzistas.

"The Constitutionalists are led by General Oregón, who is known for his proficiency in military strategy. He has ordered his troops to advance cautiously and prepare for a possible battle.

"The situation is tense, and both sides are prepared for a significant conflict. The Constitutionalists are trying to gain control of the territory, while the Carranzistas are determined to maintain their position.

"The Copyright Department is monitoring the situation closely and will provide updates as necessary."

U.S. Airplanes to Fly Over the Border Today

"As reported from the border, U.S. airplanes will be seen today flying over the border to support the Constitutionalists. This move is a significant development in the ongoing conflict.

"The airpower will provide a strategic advantage to the Constitutionalists, enabling them to coordinate their forces and communicate effectively.

"The Constitutionalists are expected to use this opportunity to launch attacks against the Carranzistas. The Carranzistas will likely respond in kind, leading to a significant escalation in the conflict.

"The situation is highly volatile, and both sides are ready for battle. The outcome of this conflict could determine the future of the region."

---

In Zacatecas, the Constitutionalists are advancing, consolidating their forces and preparing for a possible battle against the Carranzistas. The situation is tense, and both sides are fully mobilized. The Constitutionalists, led by General Oregón, are well-equipped and well-trained, while the Carranzistas, under General Obregon, are determined to maintain their position.

---

The Constitutionalists have occupied the city of Zacatecas, completing their advance across the border. The Carranzistas are retreating, and the Constitutionalists are preparing to pursue them. The conflict is likely to continue, with both sides seeking to gain control of the territory.

---

The Constitutionalists have launched a major offensive against the Carranzistas, advancing across the border and consolidating their forces. The Carranzistas are fighting back, but the Constitutionalists are gaining control of the territory. The situation is tense, and both sides are fully mobilized. The outcome of this conflict is uncertain, and both sides are prepared for a possible battle.

---

The Constitutionalists have taken control of the border region, consolidating their forces and preparing for a possible battle against the Carranzistas. The Carranzistas are retreating, and the Constitutionalists are preparing to pursue them. The conflict is likely to continue, with both sides seeking to gain control of the territory.

---

The Constitutionalists have launched a major offensive against the Carranzistas, advancing across the border and consolidating their forces. The Carranzistas are fighting back, but the Constitutionalists are gaining control of the territory. The situation is tense, and both sides are fully mobilized. The outcome of this conflict is uncertain, and both sides are prepared for a possible battle.