

PILGRIMS AT SHRINE

Many Persons Visit Church at Echternach, Luxemburg.

Curious Ceremony Part of Reputed Cure for Nervous Disorders—Several Bands Help Devout Keep Step During Hop.

London.—The extraordinary spectacle of between one and two thousand solemn-faced men, women and children hopping and dancing, backward and forward, to the inspiring strains of a number of brass bands was seen in the quiet little country town of Echternach, Luxemburg, recently.

The occasion was that of the feast of St. Willibrod, an eighth century abbot of Echternach, and the hopping multitude is formed of pilgrims to his shrine, for it is said that all those who suffer from nervous diseases who will pass before the shrine of the saint displayed in the old abbey church here, hopping three steps forward and then two backward, will be cured.

The scene reminds one strongly of a troop of howling dervishes, who after howling and waving about for hours, become frenzied and end by collapsing.

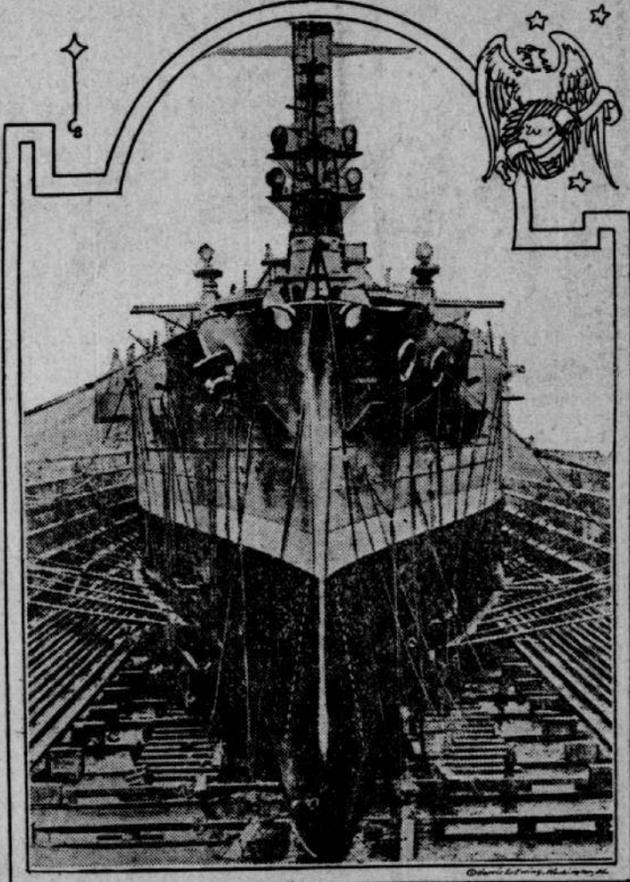

The pilgrims of Echternach are not so bad as that, but many of them danced until almost exhausted, and, with clothing burst open and perspiration streaming down their faces, they staggered to drink the water held out to them by the onlookers, then dashing through the crowd back to the places in a fever of religious excitement.

At a distance the procession looks like a huge party of merry-makers until closer inspection shows the tense and solemn faces.

They came down the narrow streets in ranks of about six, each holding a handkerchief to connect him with his neighbor. Hundreds of women, utterly careless of appearance, their black dresses covered with dust, hair combs and pins falling and faces red with exertion, struggle along, in many cases dragging children with them.

White-robed priests, bands and banners head the pilgrimage, followed by a body of young men wearing only shirt, trousers and boots, who put great energy into their dance, sur-

BIG BATTLESHIP IN DRYDOCK

THE ARKANSAS IN DRY DOCK

During her speed trials off the coast of Maine the other day, the new battleship Arkansas ran onto an uncharted reef that damaged her bottom and forced her into drydock. Despite the accident the powerful destroyer exceeded her contract speed of 20 3/4 knots by attaining 21 1/2 knots an hour.

ing back and forth regardless of whose toes they stamp on.

When the church is reached the peculiar step is continued, the pilgrims passing in at one door and out at another.

Instead of the quiet coolness one expects to find inside the church there is a terrible din; several bands playing independently and the scraping and banging of hundreds of thick boots make it quite unlike a place of worship.

The pilgrimage to the shrine is held in great esteem in the neighborhood, and a vast number of cures are attributed to the beneficent influence of the worthy old Abbot of Echternach.

NOTE FROM ANDREE

Message Sent by Explorer Public After Six Years.

California Farmer Has Finally Given Out Polar News Recovered on the Leg of a Goose—Bird Captured in 1906.

Sacramento, Cal.—North Pole, July 1, 1906, Major Andree.

Was this message, which was tagged to the foot of a south-bound goose, captured by a northern California farmer on July 24, 1906, a message from the dead telling of the first successful conquest of the frozen north, written by the leader of the ill-fated polar expedition which left Danes Island, Northwest Spitzbergen, in the balloon Cornet on July 11, 1897?

For 15 years the civilized world has waited in vain for news of the Andree party.

On the morning of July 24, 1906, a single goose, unlike any species ever seen in California, fell exhausted into the chicken-yard of H. M. Thomas, a farmer residing near Montague, Siskiyou county.

Thomas discovered a small nicked tag attached to one of its legs, tied securely by a strand of copper wire.

U. S. CODFISHERS GO FAR

Many Gloucester Ships Obligated to Seek the Waters Off Western Alaska.

Seattle, Wash.—Off the bleak shores of western Alaska the world is now drawing on its last and greatest store of codfish. Branches of all the large western codfishing packing plants are now established on Puget sound. The supplies come from the shores of Alaska, 1,000 miles westward from the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Over one hundred codfishing boats are now on the fishing banks, each manned with its complement of dories, lines and appliances for cleaning and hauling away the catch. Of these ships some sixty once claimed Gloucester, Mass., their home port.

For six months the codfishers will work as long as there is light to haul into their dories their daily catch. The men are paid an average of 10 cents per fish, and a usual day's work is from 250 to 350 fish, weighing from three to fifteen pounds. Each ship carries eight dories, with five men to a dory.

Each morning the fish are piled up on the deck of the ship, where they are cleaned and then salted away in the hold, one pound of salt to four pounds of fish.

The men earn from $10 to $30 per day. Prizes are given to the fisher who makes the largest catch during a season. Last season the champion caught 14,300 codfish. Anacortes, Wash., in mid-Puget sound, is the Pacific home of the world's largest cod fishing fleet. The cod fishing pay roll is $1,200,000 annually.

CHILDREN SOLD AS SLAVES

Annual Fair is Held at Friedrichshafen to Loan Boys and Girls to Farmers.

Friedrichshafen.—A strange custom prevails in the Tyrolean Alps. Landless parents sell their children for the summer season to the largest landowner, the sales being effected at an annual fair held at Friedrichshafen, on the Lake of Constance, at Easter time. This year 125 boys and 30 girls, between the ages of eleven and sixteen years, were offered. Purchasers were not lacking, about 600 peasant farmers from Baden, Wurtemberg, and Bavaria had come to get child-slaves to work on their farms. The purchasers behaved exactly as at the cattle market, scrutinizing the boys and girls, sometimes feeling their biceps, and then making an offer to the person in charge of the party.

Owing to the demand this year being so much greater than the supply, the prices ruled high, $60 being given for a sturdy lad of sixteen, big enough to wield the hayfork or a scythe effectively, while $50 was given for one of the older girls who looked as if she could do a long day's weeding in the sun. One the other hand, $12 was considered enough for little, underfed nites of eleven, who ought to have been at school.

The money, of course, goes to the children's parents, landless men in the remote valleys of Tyrol, woodsmen and the like, who, one would be glad to believe, are driven by sheer destitution to send their children to work for strangers in a foreign country. The child slaves are sent home at the end of October—all that is, but some who succumb to overwork, ill-treatment, and home-sickness. That the children are not always well treated is well known, but a black-list is kept, and an offender has a poor chance of making a purchase thereafter.

The whole business of the child-market, which is of great antiquity, is now arranged by a clerical society, the activity of which is violently attacked by part of the local press, which demands its suppression.

NOTED LONDON CATHEDRAL

St. Paul's Has Been the Scene of Many Notable Gatherings Since It Was Built.

London.—The memorial service at St. Paul's cathedral in London in commemoration of those who went down with the Titanic was for a little while the focus of the world's greatest city. The great downtown cathedral between Fleet street and Cheapside has been the scene of many a tremendous gathering. It stands like a huge rock fair amid the seas of traffic that wash up Ludgate Hill from the Strand and on the east to the Bank of England; different from the Abbey which stands remote at Westminster. St. Paul's was rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren after the great fire of 1666. It is 516 feet long and 219 feet wide; took twenty-two years to build until the time of opening, and thirteen years more for completion. St. Paul's is the tomb of many great men. Over the north door is the inscription, "Lector at monumentum requiritur, circumspice." "Reader, if you seek his monument, look about you."

The combination is such that it is not affected by acids or alkalies, and thus has a double advan-

TIES DOG ON FISHING LINE

Angler Solves Problem of Leading Canine in London by Using Tackle.

London.—There is a dog crisis in a famous West end square. The regulations are clear that all dogs must be led, but the trouble has arisen about the length of the lead. One ingenious dog owner has an arrangement like a fishing line, which he lets out and takes in, with the result that the terrier can go many yards from his master without, he argues, breaking any bylaw. Another owner is a tarpon angler, who threatens to put his mastiff on a tarpon reel which has 1,000 yards of line. A meeting on the matter is about to be called.

Wood Leg Draws Lightning

Iron Braces on Artificial Limb Attract Electricity Which Badly Burns Railway Signal Man.

Kansas City, Mo.—During a severe thunderstorm G. Richards, fifty-eight years old, 3019 Dunham avenue, a signal man for the Kansas City Belt Railway company, was struck by lightning in his tower at Twenty-fourth and Penn streets. He is in the General hospital being treated for serious burns.

Richards was at work at the time the lightning struck the tower. The bolt first struck the stove pipe that extends through the roof of the signal station and it followed the pipe to the interior, where the lightning continued its downward course with Richards in its path.

"If Richards had not worn an artificial leg I don't believe the lightning would have struck him," Dr. G. C. Remley, a police ambulance surgeon, said. "His left leg is cut off below the knee and his artificial leg has iron braces which are held in place by a belt that encircles his body. It is my opinion that this metal attracted the electricity to the man."

The effect of the lightning is shown in burns over the lower portion of Richards' abdomen and legs. The lightning followed the artificial left leg from a point a few inches below the knees. The limb was splintered and at the toe of the shoe a hole was torn in the leather, giving appearance of something having been thrust through from the inside. The pipe from the stove was wrecked, a window knocked out and the contents of the room were scattered about.

The police was notified of Richards' injury and the ambulance from police headquarters was sent out. The injured man had to be carried from the tower.

INJURY MAKES SHOP LIFTER

Los Angeles Prosecutor Frees Woman Charged With Kleptomania—Lays Downfall to Gambling.

Los Angeles, Cal.—After a reading of the Ten Commandments and the exaction of a promise that she would not attempt to commit suicide, Miss Cecilia M. Chappelle, formerly a New York broker's clerk, was freed by the city prosecutor of charges of shoplifting. Miss Chappelle, who was arrested, had told the police officials that her downfall was due to gambling on the stock market, which had cost her her savings and $2,500 more borrowed from her father.

A city physician after an examination of the prisoner announced that a skull injury received a year ago probably was responsible for her kleptomania.

The Two Sexes. Miss Lillian Russell, at a birthday supper in New York, was congratulated on her unfading beauty and on her high spirits.

Miss Russell, laughing gaily, replied: "A woman is as happy, you know, as she looks pretty."

"And a man?" said her interlocutor, "Oh, a man," she answered, "is as happy as he feels important."

Rather an Open Secret. A very important citizen was drawn on a jury, a week or two ago, and I met him after he had been discharged. He seemed to think that he was entitled to be on the bench, at the very least.

"What was your verdict in that case?" I asked.

"The defendant was unanimously acquitted on the first ballot."

"Indeed? And how did you vote?"

"That, sir, is one of the sacred secrets of the jury room."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DUBIOUS

About What Her Husband Would Say. A Mich. woman tried Postum because coffee disagreed with her and her husband. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee. She writes:

"My husband was sick for three years with catarrh of the bladder, and palpitation of the heart, caused by coffee. Was unable to work at all and in bed part of the time.

"I had stomach trouble, was weak and fretful so I could not attend to my household—both of us using coffee all the time and not realizing it was harmful.

"One morning the grocer's wife said she believed coffee was the cause of our trouble and advised Postum. I took it home rather dubious what my husband would say—he was fond of coffee.

"But I took coffee right off the table and we haven't used a cup of it since. You should have seen the change in us, and now my husband never complains of heart palpitation any more. My stomach trouble went away in two weeks after I began Postum. My children love it, and it does them good, which can't be said of coffee.

"A lady visited us who was usually half sick. I told her I'd make her a cup of Postum. She said it was tasteless stuff, but she watched me make it, boiling it thoroughly for 15 minutes, and when done, she said it was splendid. Long boiling brings out the flavor and food quality." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
