23 Counties Fail to Send in Lists

Last Day for Mailers Out of Sheriffs' Filing Books and Lost But Complied With.

Under the law, today is the last day for mailers to file returns in the counties where the election was held. In many places only half of the counties have been reported in. But in many others, the returns have been sent in on time. But in others, the returns have been sent in on time. The administration has been looking over the election returns closely, and if any counties fail to send in their returns, they will be compelled to reprint the ballots and hold the elections all over again.
