

"We Are Ready," Said Uncle Sam's Jackies Sitting on the Texas' 14-inch Rifle.

This is the great 14-inch rifle of the American super-dreadnought Texas with which William Kuef, star gunner of the navy, made six hits of a moving target at a distance of fourteen miles, thereby breaking the world's record of marmauship. He did this in recent practice off the Virginia Capes, and he is therefore a hero of the American fleet, assembled in the Hudson River during the week when the Lusitania, with more than 100 Americans, was sunk.

The Texas carries ten of these great rifles, the strongest in any navy in the world, except those on the five warships built, and now building, in British shipyards of the class of the Elizabeth, which tore up the forts of the Darnelles.

The New York and the Texas are the first vessels of the American navy to be equipped with 14-inch rifles, a weapon forty-four feet in length, weighing sixty-three tons and hurling a 1,400-pound shell twenty-one miles. At 10,000 yards it can penetrate six-teen inches of the best Krupp armor. The shell carries a much larger bursting charge than does the 12-inch, with which all other dreadnoughts and most American battleships are armed, and because of this and its greater energy the destructive effect is much greater than that of the lighter shell. The rifles showing above are the 5-inch, of which the Texas and the New York have twenty-one. They are designed as protection against torpedo attack.

ENTHUSIASM GROWS IN AD. WRITING CONTEST

Numerous Contestants Already Busy—Church Society Enters.

Everybody's doing it! Doing what? Writing ads for the Amateur Ad Writers Contest. Each day brings to light numerous contestants who had not announced the fact before that they thought they had talent for ad-writing.

Those who are trying their hand for the first time at this very interesting pastime are delighted. They say that the mental exertion of trying to write just the correct words that will induce the public to come straight down town to Mr. So and So's store NOW and buy something which they had no intention of purchasing before they read the wonderfully "fetching" adlet is certainly captivating.

If you have never tried this stunt sharpen your pencil NOW and begin AT ONCE. It's lots of fun, and then, look at the prizes. The merchants, in talking about the questions and suggestions made to them by parties who are now engaged in writing ads for this contest state that they are convinced that the ads will be away above the average. That the general public will be amazed at the clever ads written by these amateurs.

The Intelligencer heard, yesterday that there was a church society of the city which had its members working on ads for this contest, and that if they were awarded any of the prizes, the society would get the money. Pretty good idea. Others might do the same.
