

UNITED STATES MAY INTERVENE IN CUBA SOON

Negro Rebels Seem to Be Beyond Control and Situation at Santiago Seems Acute—Hundreds of Homes Are Being Looted.

All Sugar Mills Are Closed and Heavily Guarded—No Quarter to Be Shown.

HAVANA, May 24.—American intervention in Cuba is believed certain today here, following the receipt of dispatches from the provinces of Sango and from towns along the route of the Bayamo railroad, telling of fresh raids by the negro rebels. The situation in Santiago is acute, and it is generally feared that the government will be unable to control the situation without help from the United States.

The British cruiser Melpomene arrived at Guantanamo today for the protection of British lives and property. The rebels are running things with a high hand along the Bayamo railway, looting hundreds of homes and mistreating women and children.

All sugar mills in the Santiago province are closed and heavily guarded. General Mendicta, who is in command of the government forces in Santiago, received orders today to show no quarter to the rebels.

NEW JERSEY HEARS MANY SPEECHES

TRENTON, N. J., May 24.—With President Taft, Colonel Roosevelt, Senator La Follette and Governor Woodrow Wilson pouring out appeals, denunciations and adjurations from the stump, New Jersey today is seeing the most exciting presidential campaign in its history.

La Follette makes seven speeches during the day. President Taft left Trenton at 8 o'clock this morning and was scheduled for a dozen speeches. In his early efforts he roasted Roosevelt to a turn, paying comparatively little attention to Senator La Follette.

Roosevelt speaks at three big meetings tonight and is billed to address a crowd in this city tonight.

OROZCO THOUGH HURT, DIRECTS ARMY'S RETREAT

EL PASO, Texas, May 24.—Although suffering from a painful wound in the leg received in his disastrous battle with General Huerta's federal troops, in which the revolutionary loss is placed at close to 1,000 men, General Pascual Orozco, commander-in-chief of the Mexican rebel army, today is personally directing the retreat of his army toward Jimenez. There the rebel chieftain plans to make a final effort to halt the advancing federals and turn the tide of defeat which yesterday swept the rebels in confusion out of Rellano.

General Orozco narrowly escaped death in yesterday's battle. While giving orders on the firing line a shell burst and instantly killed one of his staff officers standing near. A fragment of the shell struck the rebel general in the left leg, inflicting a painful wound. A few minutes later the enemy's artillery started pouring a raking fire into the rebel ranks and the revolutionists, unable to withstand the hail of shells, retired to Corralitos. At daybreak today the army continued to Jimenez, where the rebels plan to make another stand.

Rebel leaders at Juarez admitted today that General Orozco was disastrously defeated at Rellano. Orozco, however, is strictly censoring messages, and few details of the rebel casualties are permitted to leak out.

DIES SUDDENLY.

The building in which the market is located was erected by the city at a cost of $1800. It is situated on Riverside avenue and is so constructed that it will be convenient to producer and buyer. Everything is clean and cool.

SAYS SIX GUNSMEN WERE CHOSEN TO SLAY OFFICIALS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 24.—Reports that gunmen have come to San Diego to participate in the I. W. W. war here, which have been heard on the streets for several days are verified today by Chief of Police Wilson. Wilson says that six men were chosen by lot at a meeting in Los Angeles to come here and assassinate Mayor Wadhams, Councilman Schott, District Attorney Uley and himself. He declares that the police have seen the men here and shadowed them, but that they did not bring arms into the city, fearing arrest. The arms were to be furnished by sympathizers here, the chief declares.

Wilson says one of the six men weakened after arriving at San Diego, and gave the police department the story of the plot. The informer was to appear at the police station last night.

"I do not know why the man did not come," Chief Wilson said today "but I believe he has been done away with by his companions."

No arrests have been made in the case. Threatening letters received by the police and other officials here have been turned over to the federal grand jury in Los Angeles. The letters contained threats, warnings and abuse. It is declared.

Because of the intense feeling in San Diego and the fact that the wife of Mayor Wadhams recently gave birth to a child, the authorities have attempted to suppress all news of the alleged arrival of the gunmen.

GREAT DISPLAY OF GOLD NUGGETS IS TO BE SHOWN

What is said to be the handsomest display of gold nuggets ever gathered by any one man will be on display at the Medford National bank Saturday where the public is invited to call and see them. Thousands of dollars in virgin gold, just as it came from the earth will be displayed by N. Jerry, the "Nugget King" who has just arranged a new box of nuggets. The greater portion of the gold comes from this mining district. Mr. Jerry states that he has collected it in order to advertise this section and it will be shown by him extensively.

The collection is comprised of nuggets which are veritably the cream of the earth. Some exceptionally beautiful pieces of gold are shown. Those interested in mining will no doubt take advantage of Jerry's offer in placing them on exhibit.

Recently the nugget king has secured some very handsome specimens to augment his previous collection which has attracted much attention. The nuggets will be on display Saturday and Monday.

IN QUALITY OF FRUIT IS HOPE OF NORTHWEST

SPOKANE, Wn., May 24.—Northwestern Fruit Exchange, headed by R. H. Parsons, of Medford, Ore., has opened joint offices in the Chamber of Commerce building, Spokane. H. W. Otis of Peshastin, vice president for Washington, has charge. The office is on an equal basis with headquarters at Portland and will handle the tree fruit crop of eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana this season.

President Parsons, who is in Spokane with C. A. Malboeuf, secretary, and L. E. Metcalf, organizer, said in the course of an interview:

"Ten years from now the northwest should be producing 75,000 cars of apples, peaches, pears and other fruits. But we need not fear any danger of overproduction, for two reasons. In the first place, a large majority of the fruit trees planted will never come into bearing. Probably not more than 60 to 70 per cent of them will bear.

"In the second place, we will solve the problem of distribution. By meeting the demand by proper distribution and by stimulating a further demand, we will be able to dispose easily of what we produce.

"Another thing we need to do is to produce in this northwest a perfect fruit, as nearly as possible. It is essential to counteract the growing of fruit in the east. We cannot meet their competition on freight, but they cannot produce the quality of fruit we can here with our virgin soil."

COMMONWEALTH CONFERENCE IS OPEN AT EUGENE

Many of the Most Pressing of the Problems Now Before the People of Oregon Will Be Discussed by Experts at Meet.

Taxation, Good Roads, Extension of Farm Areas and the Like Are Topics Discussed.

EUGENE, Or., May 24.—Many of the most pressing of the problems now before the people of Oregon will be discussed by experts before the Fourth Annual Commonwealth Conference, which began its sessions here today under the auspices of the University of Oregon. Prominent thinkers of the state presented papers on taxation, on good roads, the extension of farm areas, and kindred topics. General discussions followed each paper.

Tomorrow the Oregon State Conservation commission will hold joint sessions with the conference. Practically all of the forest service officials of the state are expected to attend these sessions.

"Taxation and Social Justice," was the subject of the first paper presented before the conference. The subject was discussed by Charles V. Galloway, member of the board of state tax commissioners.

W. K. Newell of Gaston, president of the Oregon state board of horticulture, speaking before the conference presented a paper on "Improvement of the Economic Organization in Oregon for Securing to the Producers a Full Share of the Values Created."

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Newell said:

"Farmers have been advised for many years that the very highest service which they could render the state was to produce two blades of grass where but one grew before. That by so doing the cost of living could be reduced and the entire country would grow in wealth and comfort. But the farmers are gradually awakening to the fact that something is wrong with this system, and upon investigation they find that they are receiving, according to Secretary Wilson's figures, only 41 per cent of the price that the consumer finally pays for what they are now producing. Why, then, try to produce more? Why not rather try to get a fairer share of what they are already producing?"

"The only means of so doing is by co-operative organization for securing united effort in growing specialized crops in localities best adapted to them, for wholesale buying of supplies, and as much as possible retail selling. Associations must be controlled by local boards of directors from among the stockholders, and a manager selected for his fitness,

GOULDER BACK FROM FLOODED DISTRICTS SOUTH

Rev. W. T. Goulder returned Thursday from a month's visit to several cities of the south and east. He went east as a member of the missionary board and the building extension board of the M. E. church South. He visited Nashville, New Orleans, Louisville, and also his old home in Fulton, Ky. Mr. Goulder dropped in on that southern country just in time to witness the devastation and suffering wrought by the recent floods in that country. He saw sights that were appalling and heartrending—a mingling on one level of the richest and poorest of the flooded sections and all practically destitute of means of sustenance. He saw rafts floating on the water of flooded fields upon which there had taken refuge both white and black people, hogs, cows, dogs and chickens. Many people in those flooded districts, Mr. Goulder says, are coming to the Pacific coast this fall with the expectation of making their homes here.
