World's Greatest Guns on New U. S. Battleships
Will Make Naval Warfare Inconceivably Dreadful

By René Bache.

The Salt Lake Tribune, Sunday Morning, September 17, 1911.

FOSSIL WORMS MILLIONS OF YEARS OLD

Gazing upon the street—
In pensive mood I watch the hurrying throng;
Striving to read Life's riddle in the faces that go by—
Faces masked with indifference, giving no sign of existence;
Faces fired with lust, hurrying swift toward death;
Faces calm and benignant, speaking of peace after sorrow;
Faces that spell ambition and determination to conquer—
Ceaselessly surging and passing—the tumult dies to a murmur—
Clear and sweet to my soul comes a message—
The Voice of the Silence.

—J. B. Miller.

The Voice of Silence.