THE DEFENCE OF NEW YORK

N. W. F. Kunz would have us believe that the cost of protecting New York City, the greatest naval station in the world, is so great that it would be practically the primary operation of a future war. New York is certainly the key to America's future, but it would seem that some means should be found to protect the city from attack.

The condition of the city was not such that it was impossible to protect it. The United States Navy has been rapidly building up its fleet, and it is now one of the strongest in the world. The city is well protected by a system of forts and batteries, and the city is well supplied with water and food.

The city is well supplied with water, and the water is of good quality. The city is well supplied with food, and the food is of good quality. The city is well supplied with fuel, and the fuel is of good quality.
