DANGER OF CLASH PASSES AWAY

German Government Yields To Demand Of United States

Principle For Which President Wilson Has Contended Is Recognized

Washington, Sept. 1.—The removal of German讹reasures against the Allies is the result of the Washington government's yielding to the demands of the United States. The German government has announced that it will cease to maintain the existing restriction on the sale of American meat to Germany, and that it will cease to prevent the sale of American wheat to Germany.

Wilson's Demand

President Wilson has been pressing for the removal of these restrictions for some time. He made it clear that he would not continue the war unless the German government agreed to certain conditions. One of these conditions was the removal of the restrictions on the sale of American meat and wheat to Germany. The German government has now agreed to these conditions.

The Swedish Mission

The Swedish government had been trying to mediate between the Allies and Germany. It had been acting as a peacemaker and had been trying to bring about a peace settlement. The German government has now agreed to the demands of the United States and has ceased to maintain the existing restriction on the sale of American meat and wheat to Germany.
