Right—A model of the heroic bronze, by Augustus Lukeman, of a cheering doughboy which is to be erected as a soldiers' memorial in Red Hook Park, Brooklyn. De Witt Ward

Ever active General Pershing. In this smiling picture of him he's posing with Miss Julia C. Stinson, sponsor for the army transport Chaumont, at a Hog Island launching. The vessel was named in honor of the French town where the A. E. F. commander in chief had his general headquarters. Underwood

Left—A typical scene in Melrose Park, Ill., a result of the recent tornado which did such terrific damage in the West—two homeless lads, an eighty-year-old grandmother injured in the collapse of her house, and a state guardaman on duty to prevent vandals from appropriating the scattered household effects of the community. Underwood

Above—This granddaddy of all pipes, presented to a German museum by the sole survivor of a club of sixteen members, was made so the entire club membership could smoke it at once. The bowl holds three pounds of tobacco. Whether the smoking of this young chimney was responsible for the killing off of the club's members is not reported. International

Right—The novel and unusual type of fighting top with which the new U. S. S. Tennessee is equipped. Uncle Sam's new super-dreadnought, one of the largest and most powerful afloat, is soon to be placed in commission at the Brooklyn navy yard. International

Guess again. It's not a moonshine still in the Blue Ridge Mountains, but a springtime scene in Quebec of a husky pair of Canadian maple sugar farmers sampling their sweet crop at the boiling house. British and Colonial Press
