OUR OBSCURE FLEET THAT COST NEARLY $130,000,000

Shane Lyla E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Rescued Her Health.

Lanston, Ky. — "I take great pleasure in writing this letter to the publishers of the Farmers' Champion. This is a true story of a young lady who, having passed through a most critical illness, is now entirely convalescent, and which I believe will prove an encouragement to any woman to make up her mind to a decision," Mrs. Laura Pinkham, Lanston, Ky., writes. "I have lived alone for about eight years, being the only child of my parents, who died while young. My brother was a sailor on the busy sea, and I was left with the care of my mother's sister, who was a widow. I was married to a sailor, and my husband died of typhoid fever. I was left with three children, and I was in a very critical state of health. I had to leave the sea and come home, and I was left with the care of my children. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health. I was in a very critical state of health. I was in a very critical state of health.

Another Sufferer Believed - Younger Texas. — I am writing this letter to the publishers of the Farmers' Champion. This is a true story of a young lady who, having passed through a most critical illness, is now entirely convalescent, and which I believe will prove an encouragement to any woman to make up her mind to a decision. I have lived alone for about eight years, being the only child of my parents, who died while young. My brother was a sailor on the busy sea, and I was left with the care of my mother's sister, who was a widow. I was married to a sailor, and my husband died of typhoid fever. I was left with three children, and I was in a very critical state of health. I had to leave the sea and come home, and I was left with the care of my children. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health.

The following is a letter written to the publishers of the Farmers' Champion. This is a true story of a young lady who, having passed through a most critical illness, is now entirely convalescent, and which I believe will prove an encouragement to any woman to make up her mind to a decision. I have lived alone for about eight years, being the only child of my parents, who died while young. My brother was a sailor on the busy sea, and I was left with the care of my mother's sister, who was a widow. I was married to a sailor, and my husband died of typhoid fever. I was left with three children, and I was in a very critical state of health. I had to leave the sea and come home, and I was left with the care of my children. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health.

The following is a letter written to the publishers of the Farmers' Champion. This is a true story of a young lady who, having passed through a most critical illness, is now entirely convalescent, and which I believe will prove an encouragement to any woman to make up her mind to a decision. I have lived alone for about eight years, being the only child of my parents, who died while young. My brother was a sailor on the busy sea, and I was left with the care of my mother's sister, who was a widow. I was married to a sailor, and my husband died of typhoid fever. I was left with three children, and I was in a very critical state of health. I had to leave the sea and come home, and I was left with the care of my children. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health. I was in a very critical state of health, and I was in a very critical state of health.