

WHALEN WAS HERO OF SPANISH WAR

Fought in the Battle of Santiago.

HAD EXCELLENT RECORD

In His Dying Declaration He Mentioned No Woman's Name in Connection With Tragedy.

When the hears containing the body of James A. Whalen, who died Tuesday, was taken to Oak Hill Cemetery Friday evening, there were few besides the family of the deceased who knew or realized that the grave was about to receive another veteran of the battle of Santiago.

"Sergeant" Whalen was on the battleship Texas during that famous engagement. Even had he not worked in the navy yard, he would have been entitled to the respect that the gun machinists showed him in the two gigantic and magnificent wreaths they placed on his coffin as a last mark of respect.

The services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Campbell, of the Rockville Baptist Church, and the Rev. Mr. Stealey, of the West Washington Baptist Church.

Spotless Record.

From what has been ascertained from the Whalen family and friends, regarding the dead hero's life, it would appear that the sergeant was of a mild disposition and one of the last men in the world to pick a fight, despite the war blood in him that brought him, with other valiants, into and through the battle of Santiago and other naval engagements. From his papers of discharge, it is evident that both his conduct and character in the navy were excellent.

Born in Montgomery county twenty-nine years ago, the dead man lived his early life on the farm of his father, the late James Whalen, attending the country schools. In 1882 he entered at Annapolis as a private in the Marine Corps, in which he faithfully worked for five years, going through the war with Spain.

In 1900 he returned to Washington and entered the gun carriage shops at the navy yard, with several short intermissions, for visits to his home, until the time of his death.

Mentioned No Woman.

A member of the Whalen family tells The Times of an interview he had with the dead hero at the Georgetown Hospital. He said:

"Sergeant Whalen talked freely of the shooting affair, but up to the time of his death he did not even mention a lady in the case."

"He told me as a dying declaration that he left Georgetown at 9:30 p. m. for his home beyond Cabin John bridge, and that Embrey had boarded the car at the Rock Spring Club. He said that they entered into conversation and that they had both been drinking, but that Embrey had taken more than he, or seemed to have been more affected by it."

Previous Quarrels.

"He admitted that they had had previous squabbles, but that they had never been very serious. Their conversation in the beginning of that fateful night was of the most friendly nature until Whalen invited Embrey to go with him to the hotel at Cabin John. Then the conversation assumed a more troubled tone, Embrey refusing to join him."

"They parted and as Whalen went up the road Embrey followed at a distance, the two men talking back at each other, Embrey even threatening to shoot him. Whalen said, but he then paid little attention to this threat."

"After walking along this way for about a mile and a half, Whalen said Embrey whipped out his revolver and with the exclamation, 'Damn it, I told you I would shoot you!' Embrey drew his gun and shot at him below the heart. Whalen said he walked about a quarter of a mile to the nearest house, which was that of the brother of the sheriff, Deputy Frank Embrey, who took him to the Georgetown Hospital."

WORSE AND WORSE.

"What silly verses that woman is reciting!"
"I wrote them, sir!"
"Ah—oh, yes—to be sure—clever lines, but horribly delivered, don't you know—woman must be a fool to bring 'em on—Who is she?"
"My wife, sir!"—Cleveland Leader.

SCATHLESS THROUGH SANTIAGO FIGHT, HERO MEETS DEATH BY PISTOL SHOT

EX-SERGEANT JAMES A. WHALEN, OF BATTLESHIP TEXAS, Who Died Tuesday of Bullet Wound Inflicted by Deputy Sheriff William A. Embrey, and Whose Funeral Took Place Friday.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR A FOOD DISPLAY

Everything Indicates a Successful Exposition to Be Given by Washington Grocers.

Arrangements are practically completed for the National Pure Food Show and Industrial Exposition to be held in Convention Hall from the 4th to the 16th of December, under the auspices of the Washington Retail Grocers' Protective Association. The plans as completed give every reason to believe that the show will be a success in every respect and reflect much credit on the association.

The floor space of Convention Hall is to be divided into three general sections. Sections A and C will be devoted to industrial exhibits, while section B, occupying the center of the hall, will be entirely occupied by food manufacturing concerns. Of the seventy-five exhibits on the floor, it is expected that fully two-thirds will be pure food exhibits.

A feature of the exposition will be the domestic science lecture and exhibits. The exhibits of particular interest to housekeepers include a model laundry, model kitchen, model nursery, a model home, and a model dairy.

The management of the exposition further announces the engagement of Mrs. Linda Ross Wade for a series of lectures on "Styles for Women." Mrs. Wade is the highest salaried woman lecturer in the country. Her lectures will be given each evening during the exposition. The afternoons will be taken up by lectures on the "Art of Cooking," by Mrs. Lily Haxworth-Wallice.

NOT WHOLLY WASTED.

Rejected Youth (mortified and indignant)—You are not only cruel and heartless, but you are unfair! You have allowed me to dance attendance upon you for a whole year without any other thought than merely to amuse yourself with me!

The Young Woman—Oh, well; your time has run altogether thrown away, Harry. I can give you a fraternal letter of recommendation to any other girl you may happen to take a fancy to, you know.—Chicago Tribune.

WILL DISAGREE.

A simple young fellow named Ed, was told that the hairs on his head, in twenty months, about "Would surely fall out."
"All right, let them quarrel," Ed said.—Kansas City Times.

THE UNEXPECTED.

"Things don't always turn out as we expect."
"That's a fact; I expected that automobile to turn out to the right and it turned out to the left, and here I am in the hospital."—Houston Post.

WANT EXPERT ENGINEER ON CORONER'S JURIES

Union Recommends Change in Letter to Commissioners About Potomac Plant Accident.

An experienced engineer should be appointed to serve on all coroner's juries impaneled to inquire into the cause of a fatality such as occurred at the plant of the Potomac Power Company on November 1, said the International Union of Steam Engineers of the District, through its secretary, T. J. Nicola and A. W. Leeke, in a formal letter to the Commissioners.

Although not criticizing the course of Coroner Nevitt in selecting the jury which served November 2, much better results would be felt, the letter states, if a practical engineer was to serve on these juries.

TRUSTEES WANT ORME WILL CONSTRUED

William B. Orme and Charles B. Bailey, executors and trustees under the will of the late James Orme, filed a petition in the District Supreme Court yesterday asking that the will of Mr. Orme be construed. Mrs. Ella Orme and the six sons of the deceased are named as defendants in the proceedings.

According to the statement of the executors James William Orme left an estate valued at more than a million dollars, divided about equally between personal property and real estate.

The court is asked to determine whether certain securities belong to the testator's sons as gifts made them during his lifetime or whether they are part of his estate, to be administered by the executors and trustees. R. Ross Perry & Son are named as counsel for the executors.

FELL DOWN EMBANKMENT.

Suffering from a fracture of the right leg, Lawrence Morton, colored, twenty-six years old, arrived at the Pennsylvania station yesterday afternoon from Leesburg, Va., where he was injured by falling from a steep embankment. The ambulance from the Emergency Hospital was summoned and in it the injured man was conveyed to that institution and placed in a ward.

LITTLE, BUT OH MY.

"French maid to inquiring friend"—"Oul madame is ill, but ze doctor half pronounce it something very trifling, very small."
"Friend—Oh, I am so relieved, for I was really anxious about her. What does the doctor say the trouble is?"
"French Maid—Let me recall. It was something very little, Oh, I have it now! Ze doctor says zat madame has ze smallpox."—The Tatler (London).

HAVANA, SAYS PALMA, TOO LAZY TO BE CLEAN

Writes Root That He Has Done All He Could to Have Platt Amendment Obedied.

Senators Cullom and Hopkins, of Illinois, called upon President Roosevelt yesterday. They said they did not discuss politics with the President, but merely dropped in to pay their respects.

Senator Cullom said he did not again refer to the failure of the Cuban government to comply with the sanitary requirements of the Platt amendment. When he was at the White House a few days ago, he called the President's attention to the fact that the provisions of the Platt amendment regarding the sanitation of Havana and other cities had not been complied with. He said he took the matter up with the Secretary of State and found that Mr. Root had communicated with President Palma.

President Palma informed Secretary Root that he had done everything within his power to see that every clause of the Platt amendment was carried out. It appears the fault lies entirely with the local authorities, who are careless and lazy.

In two cases of chronic and apparently hopeless neuralgia, relief has been reported by about twenty applications of violet light to the parts of the body affected.—Kansas City Journal.

Beer Wanted for Men At Brooklyn Navy Yard

Medical Inspector Says Canteen Would Cut Down Sick List From Alcoholism—Other Officers Backing Him Up.

Up toward New York there is developing a sentiment in favor of a navy canteen.

The naval officer of the Brooklyn Navy Yard is in favor of selling beer to the enlisted men.

Medical Inspector E. H. Green, U. S. N., on duty at the New York Navy Yard, in his annual report to the surgeon-general of the navy on the sanitary condition at the yard, says the health of the post has been good. The post commissary store established at the yard he describes as adding a great deal to the comfort of the men, and adds:

BEGGED LEAVE TO DIFFER.

Instructor (at night school)—It may be set down as an axiom that nobody can succeed in any line of business unless he has either a natural aptitude in that direction or has had a course of training for it.

Shaggy Haired Youth—Maybe it used to be that way, but it ain't so now. I know three or four blain'd fools that's got rich by being dummy directors in a big brewery.—Chicago Tribune.

SHORT, BUT BUSINESSLIKE.

"John," said the indignant mother, "this teacher has sent our William home from school. Now I want you, before you go to the office tomorrow, to write to her and tell her she must give William back his place."

And the next day the truculent William presented the astonished teacher with the absent-minded parent's note, which read: "Please recall this Bill promptly."—Baltimore American.

A Linen Sale to Be Thankful For

White—snow white—immaculate white should clothe the festive Thanksgiving board. It gives the table a fresh, wholesome appearance, which is a true condiment to the well-enjoyed, appreciated feast. This is a condition we have made possible on a decidedly economical basis—during this Thanksgiving Linen Sale.

We've been months in preparing for it—in gathering the best of imported and domestic linens, and happily we bought right advantageously—enough so, so that we can offer you linens of the better sorts for prices smaller than you often pay for the inferior.

We can't continue these low prices—they are too near the cost price; but while we do, Mrs. Prudent Housewife, "tis well to supply present necessities and future needs as well.

For these are "once-a-year prices"—and we doubt if another year will see prices as low. One thing is assured—they will be no lower—nor will there be such desirable, beautiful, pure linens to choose from.

The Virtue Of Ligozone is Best Told by a Test—and It's Free

The actual results of Ligozone—there is nothing else so convincing. This product is so new, and its effects so unusual, that one can scarcely believe what it does till he tries it.

That is why we ask you to try Ligozone—try it at our expense. You have tried to cure germ troubles—all people have—with remedies which don't kill germs. We ask you to try one that does. See how quick the results are. Note how different they are from the results of common drugs.

What Ligozone is. The virtues of Ligozone are derived solely from gases. The formula is sent to each user. The process of making requires large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. It is directed by chemists of the highest class. The object is to so fix and combine the gases as to carry into the system a powerful tonic-germicide.
