DROUGHT OVER STATE CONTINUES

SHOWERS OF THE PAST WEEK PROVED INSUFFICIENT—MUCH HAY IS GATHERED IN GOOD CONDITION

PORTLAND, Aug. 2.—Drought conditions in all sections of Oregon have not been broken, according to the summary of crop conditions in the state for the week ending July 28th, issued by the Portland Weather bureau. The summary follows:

"Lower temperatures permitted some improvement, but light scattered showers were insufficient to break the drought, which continued serious in all districts.

"Irrigated crops made splendid growth; otherwise, oats, spring wheat, corn, potatoes, beans, hops, sugar beets and garden truck were only poor to fair.

"Winter wheat, barley and rye harvest was general, with fair to good yields; the long hot spell caused considerable shrinkage in grain, and the quality was not the best.

"Much hay has been gathered in good condition, and the third crop of alfalfa was growing nicely in favored localities.

"Stock is doing well on mountain summer range, but elsewhere feed was scarce. It was estimated that about $100,000 worth of stock has been poisoned the last two weeks in Klamath county, the cause being attributed to the Industrial Workers of the World."
