Uncle Sam's newest submarine

The submarine, while not of the conventional type, has no doubt been added to the United States fleet for the purpose of protecting the nation's interests. The submarine is afloat, and is a submarine, bowling down the surface by its own power which is propelled by an electric engine. The submarine has been designed for the express purpose of being used as a submarine by the United States government.

Modern submarines have been built for the express purpose of being used as a submarine by the United States government. These submarines have been designed for the express purpose of being used as a submarine by the United States government. They have been designed for the express purpose of being used as a submarine by the United States government.

One of the most interesting aspects of the submarine is the fact that it is able to submerged for long periods of time without the necessity of surface operations. The submarine is able to submerged for long periods of time without the necessity of surface operations. It is able to submerged for long periods of time without the necessity of surface operations.

The submarine is afloat, and is a submarine, bowling down the surface by its own power which is propelled by an electric engine. The submarine has been designed for the express purpose of being used as a submarine by the United States government.