

Premier Baldwin is an interested spectator at the opening of Parliament. Mrs. Baldwin second from left, and Eleanor Smith, daughter of Lord Birkenhead, between them. Photograph taken on the balcony of the House of Lords.

Gun drill on the United States submarine S-48, while traveling at a high rate of speed. This bit of action took place off New London, Conn., just before the submarine joined the fleet.

International

Mrs. Kellogg, wife of the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, leaving the House of Lords after the recent opening of Parliament. She was accompanied by several Japanese diplomats.

© P. & A. Photos.

The royal procession en route to open Parliament. This is the most colorful ceremony of the year in England.

Wide World Photo.

A scene from one of the new photoplays, "Two Shall Be Born," with Jane Novak in the leading role.

Violet and American beauty felt is used in this dainty little chapeau—one of the very newest American fashions.

© United News Pictures & Underwood

"The day one realizes that mother is right is the day one finds the truth." Thus preaches pretty Bessie May Randall, an evangelist of Santa Ana, Calif. Rev. Randall is the pastor of her own church.

By United News Pictures.

Mathias Church, chief of the Kootenai Indians, who headed the tribe's unusual New Year celebration at Dayton, Mont. The Indians welcomed the New Year by staying up all night, then, at dawn, firing salutes of blank cartridges in front of the chief's tepee. A prayer succeeded each volley, and then the New Year greetings were exchanged.